WORKSHEET 2 — The Great Slop Hunt

Now hunt on a real website — one your teacher assigns, or a site you use every day. Tick every tell you find and note exactly where you saw it.

Website I hunted: _____

The tell	Found it?	Where exactly? (which part of the page)
1 · The Purple–Blue Fade	☐
2 · One Font for Everything	☐
3 · Emoji Doing the Icons' Job	☐
4 · Lorem Ipsum Left Behind	☐
5 · Everything in the Middle	☐
6 · The Shiny Badge Pill	☐
7 · Three Same-Same Cards	☐
8 · “Get Started” Buttons	☐
9 · The Fancy Café Look	☐
10 · Glassy Blur Cards	☐

My Slop Score guess for this site: _____ / 100

0 = a human clearly designed it, choice by choice. 100 = pure copy-paste AI slop. Teachers and older students: check the site's real score free at `deslop-checker.rehmanahmad.com` — how close was your guess?

The worst tell on this site was _____ because

_____

If I could fix one thing first, I would

_____

✂ TEACHER ANSWER KEY — Worksheet 1 (don't hand this part to students!)

Page A (FlowPilot): The Purple–Blue Fade + The Shiny Badge Pill. (Bonus talk: “Supercharge your workflow” is AI copy — it could describe any app on Earth.)
Page B (NoteNest): Everything in the Middle + One Font for Everything. (Bonus: “Welcome to…” is the laziest headline there is.)
Page C (TaskTiger): Emoji Doing the Icons' Job + Lorem Ipsum Left Behind.
